Storytelling - The Lost Art

There is a concern that in this day and age with all the electronics, people are losing the art of communication and the ability to build personal relationships. It has been proven that people are more likely to remember, relate to, enjoy - even buy things, if you make eye contact with them and tell them about the subject in an interesting way, that is personalized for them. Major corporates are sending their senior executives to storytelling training, to relearn how to connect with people and make a memorable and positive impression on them.

Ways to tell stories...

Our graduating class say...

Writing

Painting, comics, building, photos, collage, games.

Telling both spoken and singing.

Doing actions(mime), acting, drama, making movies.

How we dress and look, dress ups.

Dancing.

Answering questions.

Art Exhibition 14th of June 11.30am

During this camp we will practise a variety of Storytelling techniques and visual art.

Explore the City we live in and look at how where we live influences our story.

There will be a special focus on making a personalized collage, telling the story of the child's life so far.
